

- Heather Navarro -

Please refer to my portfolio site www.journamiss.com and click on published works.

Beware Beaching Sea Lions

The marine mammals are coming ashore in greater numbers but humans should not get close.

Beginning in January, more than 200 sea lion pups have been rescued on Hermosa, Manhattan and other local beaches. The starving, hypothermic baby sea lions are crawling up to shorelines in an attempt to find food.

"We've found them in bathrooms, on lifeguard towers, almost every day now since January," said Peter Wallerstein of the Marine Animal Rescue.

See the full story: <http://bit.ly/1nH5hql>